

DEBORAH J. CALLENDER, LCDR, USN

Physical Scientist (Retired)

www.usno.navy.mil/NAVO

1974

Is an administrative clerk, personal financial records clerk and MECEP student with the U.S. Marine Corps until 1985.

1985

Earns a Bachelor of Arts in English from the University of Utah.

1985

Serves as a Naval Intelligence Officer for the U.S. Navy until 1998.

1988

Earns a Master of Arts in management from the University of the Redlands.

1991

Earns an Associate of Arts in computer systems analysis from the University of Maryland at the University College of Europe.

1974

1985

1985

1988

1991

2004

2004

2005

2006

2008

2020

2004

Earns a Master of Arts in computer science with a focus on 3D visualization and animation from the University of Southern Mississippi.

2004

Works as the director of spatial information management services for Pearl River County in Poplarville, MS.

2005

Works as the Geographic Information Systems Programs Manager for Lincoln County in Libby, MT.

2006

Works as an associate software engineer for general dynamics information technology at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

2008

Is a physical scientist for the Naval Oceanographic Office within the John C. Stennis Space Center in Mississippi and presently maintains this role.

2020

Maintains membership with the American Association of Geographers, American Geophysical Union and American Meteorological Society.

A Timeline of Professional Milestones