

DALE N. PAYNE, MD, PHD

Cardiovascular and Thoracic Surgeon (Retired)

1949

Born to William N. Payne and Teresa (Borsuk) Payne in Springfield, OH.

1971

Earns a Bachelor of Science in biology and biological sciences from Ohio State University; Is a graduate teaching assistant until 1975.

1975

Achieves a Master of Science in human anatomy from Ohio State University; Is a graduate research associate until 1979.

1978

Obtains a Doctor of Philosophy in human anatomy from Ohio State University.

1979

Attains a Doctor of Medicine from Ohio State University; Is an intern and general surgery resident at the Univ. of California, Los Angeles until 1981.

1981

Is a resident in general surgery at the University of California, Davis Medical Center until 1984.

1984

Is a resident in thoracic surgery at the University of Pittsburgh until 1986.

1986

Is an assistant prof. of cardiovascular and thoracic surgery and director of the Heart Transplantation Program at the Univ. of North Carolina at Chapel Hill until 1988.

1949

1971

1975

1978

1979

1981

1984

1986

1988

1991

1993

1997

2000

2011

2013

2021

1988

Works in private practice until 1991; Is the director of the Heart Transplantation Program at the Los Angeles Heart Institute until 1991.

1991

Is an associate prof. and director of heart transplantation, surgery, cardiovascular and thoracic surgery at the Univ. of California, Irvine until 1993.

1993

Is an assistant professor in surgery at the University of Pittsburgh until 1997.

1997

Works in private practice with the Los Angeles Heart Institute and St. Vincent Medical Center until 2000.

2000

Works in private practice until 2011.

2011

Is an assistant prof. of surgery, a cardiothoracic surgeon, director of the Robotics CT Surgery Lab and surgical director of the CT Surgery ICU at the Univ. of Arizona until 2013.

2013

Is a vein specialist at the Arizona Vein & Laser Institute until 2021.

2021

Commences his retirement.

A Timeline of Professional Milestones